To Hiring Managers:

Sean is a hardworking student with tremendous potential.

We were lucky enough to have him in our first High School Scholars class at Five Towns College in the summer of 2022 when he was a rising senior in high school. His skills, his desire to learn and his leadership were obvious from the first day. Sean was always willing to help other students and eager to step into any role in front of and behind the camera.

During the first week of class, we went to a local music festival. Wanting to challenge Sean a little, we asked him to work with a small group of students to get b-roll and interviews, and he and his group did a great job.

Since then, I have been following his progress as he graduated from high school and is heavily involved in projects and broadcasting in college. He continues to show hard work, creativity and enthusiasm.

If you're hiring, you'll be glad to have him on your team.

Sincerely,

Holli Haerr
