

Headline: Country Roads Take Me... to the couch

Byline: Sean D. McQuillan, Staff Writer

Social: March Sadness: Mountaineers Snubbed from NCAA Tournament

---

The West Virginia Mountaineers will not return to the coveted March Madness tournament.

Whether you are a Pitt fan or not, you would have had West Virginia over North Carolina any day of the week. West Virginia's resume included a NET ranking of 51 and a Quad 1 record of 6-10 with key wins against Gonzaga, Kansas, Arizona, and Iowa State—teams that are listed as 8 seeds or higher in the March Madness bracket.

North Carolina's resume? They had a NET ranking of 36. Better, but the Quad 1 record the Tar Heels obtained was 1-12. The lone key win was against UCLA—a 7 seed.

How did UNC get in over West Virginia?

It just happens that the athletic director of UNC, Bubba Cunningham, is a part of the selection committee. The governor of West Virginia, Patrick Morrisey, spoke out about the situation, threatening legal action against the NCAA and going as far as labeling them as “The National Corrupt Athletic Association.”