Arguably the two best teams the NFL has to offer from the 2024 season will take battle in New Orleans in a rematch of Super Bowl LVII. Two years later, and a lot has changed since then.

The Eagles can and rightfully should win this game. They have players in five different NFL Honors categories (most of any NFL team), and all of the possibilities are the biggest of NFL Honors.

The Chiefs on the other hand... have only one, and it is none other than... Andy Reid.

Reid, 66, is already the most successful coach in Chiefs and Eagles history, having won 143 games since 2013 and 130 games between 1999 and 2012. He is also one of only three NFL head coaches, along with Bill Belichick and Don Shula, to have won six Super Bowls.

Oh, and how could I forget about Patrick Mahomes and Travis Kelce, yeah, those two have the most touchdowns between any duo in NFL playoff history.

Additionally, Mahomes has the opportunity to join the Michael Jordan (6), Tom Brady (5), and LeBron James (4) as the only players in NFL, NBA, MLB, and NHL history to win at least four career championship MVP honors.

Don't overthink it ladies and gentleman.

History is coming on February 9, 2025, and it is a three-peat.

Prediction:

FINAL - OT

Kansas City Chiefs: 36

Philadelphia Eagles: 33
